CALL FOR PAPERS:

Have You Written a Standards-Related Article that Deserves Wider Exposure?

Andrew Updegrove

The Standards MetaLibrary includes categorized abstracts and links to over 1800 scholarly articles relating to standards. It's the largest resource of its kind, and receives tens of thousands of visits a month from all over the world.

If you have an appropriate article that is already hosted on line that deserves more attention, please let me know, and I will be happy to include its abstract and a link at the MetaLibrary.

If you have written an appropriate paper that is not currently available to on-line researchers and have the permission of the publisher to make a copy available on line, please let me know, and I will be happy to host a copy.

I will also be happy to entertain proposals to include appropriate standards related articles in future issues of Standards Today, which is electronically delivered to over 6,000 subscribers around the world, and also included in an EBSCO database found in most academic libraries.

I can be reached at andrew.updegrove@gesmer.com, and by phone at 617/350-6800
